Talk Glibly
About Taxes

The young person to whom I gave this entire column Tuesday wound up his piece by saying George McGovern's "proposed income tax reform could be described radical only by those who stand the chance of paying their rightful share of taxes if his reforms succeed in being passed by the new Congress."

"Tax reform" usually is a slogan seized by politicians as a mandate authorizing them to levy new or increased taxes upon all of us. "Soak the rich" is a favorite campaign cry—but over the years, as you have observed, the rich get richer and the poor get higher taxes.

My observation as an older person to my young letter-writer is simply to ask this question: How do you "soak the rich" when you do business with them, knowing that all the taxes they pay are passed on to you in the price of goods and services?

As for the politicians' claim that the rich don't pay much tax, this is a story out of the whole cloth. I'll document that statement.

For 28 years I was a 50-50 partner of the late Clyde E. Palmer in The Star, which I now control. Mr. Palmer died in 1957 a millionaire from his extensive newspaper holdings. In 1955 The Star needed to do something about its aging building. B. W. Edwards, Hope contractor, and I went over to Texarkana to proposition Mr. Palmer.

As I explained it to him, we could do one of two things: Rebuild our existing building, or spin off our real estate to a separate company, put up a new building at a different location, and collect part of the newspaper dividend as cash rent.

Mr. Palmer smiled and started rolling a pencil between his hands—a bad sign for anyone who knew him.

"You say we'll get this rent in cash every month," he replied. "My dear boy—the Government gets 70c of every dollar I take in."

The new building idea was killed right then and there. We rebuilt on this location instead.

"The rich don't pay taxes?" My young letter-writing friend is parroting the politicians' cliché.

Another specific on taxes: Depletion allowance for oil wells is a "tax loophole."

Back in 1923-24 I was with the El Dorado Daily News in a booming oil town.

But today most of those oil wells are gone. A major refinery closed up shop a couple of years ago, and only this year Monsanto sold the Lion refinery.

"Oil depletion" is a tax "loophole"?

Not on your life. Oil does eventually run out.

I rest my case on facts—not on the yelps of topwater politicians running for a place at the public salary trough.

New trial for Calley

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorneys for Lt. William L. Calley Jr. have asked for a new trial on grounds the Army lied when it said it could not locate a missing witness to the My Lai massacre.

The petition filed Tuesday with the Army Court of Military Review asserts that the witness, Charles Dean "Butch" Gruver of Stotesbury, Mo., was contacted by the Army during Calley's 1971 trial.

But at the time of the trial, the government professed no knowledge of Gruver's whereabouts, the petition stated.

The petition claimed Gruver's testimony could lead to Calley's acquittal.

Foreign-aid legislation
resurrected in the House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign-aid legislation scrapped by the Senate has been resurrected in the House with a directive tacked on for withdrawal of all U.S. military forces from the Indochina war by Oct. 1.

The Oct. 1 war pullout in return for release of American prisoners and a cease-fire "to the extent necessary to achieve safe withdrawal" of U.S. forces was approved Tuesday by the House Foreign Affairs Committee, 18 to 17.

It was the first war-pullout directive ever initiated by the committee and reversed its endorsement two months ago of President Nixon's offer of U.S. withdrawal four months after a total Indochina cease-fire.

The antiwar measure was written into a new $2.13-billion military foreign-aid bill, cut by the committee $162 million below Nixon's request.

The Senate voted 50 to 45 Monday night in favor of cutting off all money for the war within four months. The measure was written into a $1.8-billion military-aid bill which then was killed by a 48-42 vote.

House leaders are pressing for a quick vote to send the new foreign-aid bill back to the Senate next week.

The pullout language was proposed by Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., who said he has no estimate on prospects for House approval next week. Nor does he know whether his proposal actually would force U.S. troops out of the war by Oct. 1.

These are: Hanoi's release of

he said.

Unlike the Senate measure, which would have cut off money for the war, Hamilton's amendment directs that all U.S. military forces engaging in hostilities in or over Indochina be withdrawn by Oct. 1 on three conditions.

Food prices take big hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retail food prices jumped 0.9 per cent in June, the biggest increase in four months, the government said today. Meat and fresh fruits and vegetables accounted for most of the boost.

The Agriculture Department said a year's supply of groceries for a typical family of four—the "market basket" index—went up $11 in June as a result of a $15 increase for farmers and a $4 cutback for middlemen.

The June hike was the largest monthly increase since February's 1.9-per-cent boost, the department said. There was a 0.4-per-cent decrease in food prices in March, a 0.7-per-cent decrease in April and a 0.4-per-cent increase in May.

The department said in its "market basket" index that higher prices for beef, pork, frying chickens and fresh fruits and vegetables accounted for most of the June increase. Prices for eggs dropped sharply, and price changes for most other items were relatively minor.

The "market basket," a measure of the cost of a year's supply of food for a family of four, cost an annual rate of $1,299 in June.

The farmer's share of the June market basket was $528

American prisoners, an accounting of GIs missing in enemy territory, and "a cease-fire between the United States and North Vietnam and those allied with North Vietnam to the extent necessary to achieve safe withdrawal of such remaining forces."

These are: Hanoi's release of the middleman's $771 for transporting, processing and selling the food items.

Last Friday, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said grocery prices increased 0.6 per cent over the May level. The Agriculture Department, however, measures prices for most of June while the BLS based its report on the first week of June.

The June Agriculture report showed choice beef sold at an average retail price of $1.135 per pound. This was 2.3 cents less than the record high in February and March of nearly $1.16 per pound.

The farmer's share of the June market basket was $528

McGovern to 'wait and see'

Offer by Sen.
Eagleton to quit refused

CUSTER, S.D. (AP) — Rejecting Thomas F. Eagleton's offer to quit the Democratic ticket, Sen. George McGovern says he wants to "wait and see" the reaction to his running mate's revelation that he received psychiatric care and shock treatments.

McGovern's top political adviser, Frank Mankiewicz, said the next three days will be "a little touchy," and that the incident can't be a plus for the Democrats in their uphill battle to take the White House from President Nixon.

Mankiewicz said that he thinks "a lot will depend on how the Republicans handle it. If they take it and run, there could be a considerable backlash," he said.

Eagleton told reporters on a flight to Los Angeles that "time will tell" how the public reacts to his disclosure that he voluntarily hospitalized himself in 1960, 1964 and 1966, because of "nervous exhaustion and fatigue."

Later he scheduled a news conference for today and said he would answer additional questions on his treatments.

If Eagleton should eventually leave the ticket, his successor would be selected by the Democratic National Committee.

The first Republican reaction came from Sen. Lowell Peter Weicker of Connecticut. He said in a speech prepared for the Senate today that he has worked with Eagleton on the District of Columbia committee and "should he win, I have no doubts he will fulfill with distinction the duties of vice president of the United States."

In Washington, the White House and the Committee for the Re-Election of The President declined comment.

Eagleton's disclosure was made to a newsmen after he met with McGovern Tuesday morning at the South Dakota senator's Sylvan Lake retreat in the Black Hills.

Eagleton's hands trembled, but his voice was firm as he made the unexpected announcement.

The immediate impetus for Eagleton's disclosure apparently came from the Knight Newspapers, who told a McGovern aide they planned to print on Wednesday a complete account of Eagleton's medical history.

A copyright story by Robert S. Boyd and Clark Hoyt said Eagleton had first offered to withdraw as vice president over the weekend and quoted him as saying that he was tremendously relieved to "be unburdened" of the secret of the story.

McGovern had opened a news conference Tuesday by detailing plans for the two Democratic nominees to run fully coordinated campaigns centering on the credibility of the Nixon administration, its economic record and the continuing war in Vietnam.

Then the handsome, 42-year-old Eagleton, noting rumors circulating about his health, said, "On three occasions in my life, I have voluntarily gone into hospitals as a result of nervous exhaustion and fatigue."

Statement by
Donal Parker

The following statement was released to the Star today by Donal Parker, Chairman of the Hempstead County Democratic Central Committee:

I did not think it proper for me to comment publicly on the so-called "election matter" until the Prosecuting Attorney had completed his investigation, and filed his report.

I know the motive of those few people who were complaining to the Prosecuting Attorney's office. Now, I understand, that they are complaining to the federal authorities.

I have been told that it was and is a thinly veiled effort by a few people to force my resignation and take over the election machinery in Hempstead County. If that is their motive, they are wasting their ammunition on me. I am not a member of the Hempstead County Democratic Committee, which is the duly elected body charged with the responsibility for planning and conducting primaries for that party. I am simply an officer of the Committee, selected by it to carry out Committee instructions and to see to the many details required in planning and conducting the primary elections in Hempstead County. In other words, I do the necessary legwork required. It is a time-consuming and tedious task. Primary elections are held only every two years. Therefore, there will be no further elections for the Democratic Committee to conduct until 1974.

However, by virtue of my position with the Democratic Committee, I am also the Secretary of the Hempstead County Election Commission. That body is charged with the responsibility of planning and conducting the general election. I have also helped do the detail work for the Hempstead County Election Commission, and some one will have to do it again this fall.

I do not understand the type of politics being played by this small group of men who appear determined to "get me". I do know though there is no point in me subjecting myself and my family to the type of criticism and unfounded accusations that they have been making against me in the last few weeks. While I do appreciate the many friends who have rallied to my support, and who have urged me to continue on as the executive officer of the Hempstead County Democratic Central Committee, it is still a tedious task and is simply not worth the abuse and criticism to which I have been subjected by a very few people. Therefore, I have decided to step down in the near future. However, I will not resign under fire because I have done nothing wrong. Of course I hold my position at the pleasure of the Hempstead County Democratic Committee. Should the Committee desire my resignation earlier I would, of course, submit it immediately.

There has not been a single election contest filed in Hempstead County since I have been the executive officer of the Committee. While I take pride in that fact, I deserve no credit personally. The credit goes to the many people who have helped conduct the elections over the last four years; the county Committee, the judges and clerks, the county clerks, the county treasurer, and the many other fine citizens who have helped perform this vital and necessary duty in a democracy. Sincerely,

DONAL PARKER

Thrash is named to
S&L board

Melvin C. Thrash of Hope today was appointed a director of Hope Federal Savings & Loan Association. He succeeds the late Frank J. Hill, Fred O. Ellis, president of the firm, made the announcement.

MELVIN C. THRASH

Thrash is president of Tol-E-Tex Oil Company, assistant mayor and member of the City Board of Directors, an active deacon of First Baptist Church, and past president of Hope Kiwanis club.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis L. Thrash of Hope, he graduated from Hope High School in 1950, later attended Ouachita College (Now Ouachita Baptist University) and received a BA degree. He then attended the University of Arkansas, receiving an M.A. degree in 1959.

For more than five years, he was affiliated with the Arkansas Baptist State Convention at Little Rock where he served in the capacity as business manager, resigning in 1964 to join Tol-E-Tex Oil Company.

Red River V-T School begins 7th year

Red River Vocational Technical School here will begin its seventh year of operation next Tuesday, according to J. W. Rowe, director. The school offers training for out-of-school youths and adults in technical forestry, practical nursing, business education, welding, machine shop, diesel mechanics, heavy equipment operation and masonry construction.

Average full-time enrollment during the 1971-72 school year was around 200 students. One hundred and twenty-one students were graduated from the school on June 29; however, a much greater number received adequate training to assume positions throughout the year in business and industry.

In addition to the courses mentioned above, Red River Vocational Technical School offers an extensive program in night classes to individuals and industry throughout Southwest Arkansas.

During the past year extension courses were offered in Poultry Processing for Hope Foods, Inc.; Woodworking for Young American Homes; Industrial Electricity for Nekoosa Edwards Paper Company in Ashtown; and Welding for Tex-Ark Joist Company. These, of course, were in addition to business education classes (typing, shorthand, etc.), welding, air conditioning and refrigeration, electricity, blueprint reading, and many others offered to individuals. Approximately 10 first aid courses were held to help area industry meet the new standards set forth by the Occupational Safety and Health Act.

In September, 1971, Red River Vocational Technical School began a pilot or experimental program in Exploratory Trades for high school juniors and seniors. This was the first program of this nature offered by any of the state vocational technical schools. Students enrolling in this program attended Red River two hours each day in addition to their regular classes in area high schools. They rotated through the courses offered at the school on a six-week basis and received one high school credit for each 4½ month training period completed.

Highlights during this school year are expected to be completion of a new welding building and installation of a media system whereby training films, books and other materials will be supplied area high schools on a loan basis.

The school furnishes bus transportation to students within a fifty mile radius of the school at no charge. Four new buses are being purchased by the school for use this year.

Students enrolling in Red River Vocational Technical School for the 1972-73 school year should report to the school shortly before 9:00 a.m. Tuesday, August 1.

Guthrie retires as head of country ASCS

Cecil Guthrie retired recently as county executive director of the Hempstead ASCS office. He was replaced by Jack Stuart who held the same position in Nevada County.

A former schoolteacher, Guthrie started with the old Triple A office as a plane table operator; he advanced to office manager. He moved to Hope in 1950, from Marion County.

Guthrie was honored recently with an open house at the Federal Building.

Stuart joined the ASCS as a county executive director trainee in 1969. He received training in the Hope office and additional training was received in Little River, Pike and Howard counties.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Byr Stuart, and is married to the former Jean Sewell, a native of Hempstead County and teacher in the Hope school system.

McGovern comments on Eagleton case

CUSTER, S.D. (AP) — Sen. George McGovern says he first learned the complete details of Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton's psychiatric care and shock treatments for nervous exhaustion when the two candidates and their wives met here Tuesday morning.

In an exclusive interview late Tuesday, the Democratic presidential nominee said "he and I didn't really get into it seriously" until the meeting at which they decided Eagleton should tell the full story.

Until then, he said, he knew about it in general terms. McGovern said some of his high ranking assistants had been discussing the matter with Eagleton's top aides for at least a week and some aides knew of it when the Missouri senator was selected as the vice presidential candidate.

McGovern said that when he and his wife met with the Eagletons at his Sylvan Lake retreat near here, the discussion centered on "whether it was worth disclosing, whether it was enough of an issue to be worth mentioning."

"Both Tom and I decided that if we were going to truly wage the kind of open campaign that we said we were going to wage, run the kind of open administration with full disclosure of everything, that we ought to disclose this too," McGovern added.

Although the Democratic presidential nominee had said earlier in an ABC Evening News interview with Harry Reasoner that Eagleton "is not considering" leaving the ticket, he told The Associated Press that the Missouri senator had raised that very point in their meeting here.

"He just said 'If this is embarrassing to you in any way, don't feel any obligation to keep me on,'" McGovern said. "I thought it was ridiculous even to bring it up, and I think he just did it as kind of a courtesy gesture."

"I don't think that he felt there was any grounds for his withdrawal," McGovern said. "I certainly don't."

McGovern, kept busy by staff meetings and now the Eagleton controversy in the first 10 days of a two-week vacation here, appeared tired as he discussed the matter while returning to his cabin from a tennis lesson.

But he insisted that "I'm not at all discouraged about the campaign," and feels it is off to a good start.

Dikes: Fact or propaganda?

Did U.S. bombers, deliberately or otherwise, bomb North Vietnam's dikes? If so, how extensively? A study of Hanoi's reports on the matter discloses puzzling discrepancies and raises a question about how much of the North Vietnamese complaint is propaganda.

Charges that the Americans deliberately bombed the dike areas have brought angry U.S. reaction. The State Department this week warned the secretary-general of the United Nations against spreading such reports.

Sustained aerial attacks on North Vietnam's dikes could have calamitous results for the population. But the record of Hanoi's own statements leaves serious questions unanswered.

It was not until early June that Hanoi openly accused the United States of such tactics. From what preceded and followed this charge, there is something about it suggesting afterthought, as if seeking to capitalize on the impact of such a charge.

The Red River Delta in Tonkin is one of Asia's most densely populated pieces of real estate. It is a triangle with a base of about 120 miles containing many thousands of villages. The soil is enormously fertile and ordinarily produces two rice crops a year. But annually between August and November the area is threatened by typhoons and torrential rains which can bring widespread catastrophe. Every year Hanoi warns the population about the possibility. It is warning about typhoons now.

Between September 1971 and March of this year, the North Vietnam press reported, many millions of cubic yards of earth had to be moved to shore up dikes against a threat of serious flooding. Army labor was used, as well as civilian, and this was a drain on the army's effectiveness in the South.

In January, the North Vietnamese army newspaper Quan Doi Nhan Dan reported an urgent need for "consolidating the dike networks and intensively dredging river mouths and portions of rivers necessary for effective control of flash floods." The same theme was stressed in the annual report of the country's planning commission.

In June, at Paris, the North Vietnamese accused the Americans of deliberately bombing the dikes. The United States denied it. The bombing was supposed, by North Vietnamese account, to have begun April 10 and continued unabated thereafter. But curiously there had been no mention of it in previous Hanoi press discussions of the danger of floods and other natural calamity.

In May, the official Communist newspaper Nhan Dan was saying that the United States was "threatening" to bomb the dikes and had actually hit some in one zone. If the June charge in Paris was correct, the Americans already would have been bombing the dikes for a month by that time.

Nhan Dan said May 12: "We must constantly and firmly strengthen dikes and other protective embankments and take precautionary measures against floods and typhoons with determination to triumph over natural calamities... The damned U.S. aggressors have openly threatened to strike our dikes and protective embankments and in fact they have struck at dikes in many areas of the 4th Military Zone."

If the objective was to destroy the dike system, the 4th Military Zone would be an unlikely target. The zone is all in the panhandle beginning about 40 miles south of Thanh Hoa. The vulnerable, heavily populated dike area is far to the north in the Red River Delta.

The day before Hanoi's Paris delegation accused the Americans of deliberately hitting the dikes, Nhan Dan was telling the North Vietnamese the real enemy, so far as agriculture was concerned, was Nature.

"We must not only cope with the enemy," it said June 5, "but also with sun, rain, storms, flash floods, large rivers, deep abysses and high hills."

Few doubt that U.S. interdiction of shipping and the heavy bombing of transport and communications have had a strong impact, physically and psychologically, in North Vietnam. Hanoi's claim that dikes have been hit, or at least damaged, by U.S. bombing, may have some substance, but it is also possible that U.S. and world opinion are targets of this campaign.

Troops are reported advancing in Citadel

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese paratroopers were reported today to have seized half the Quang Tri Citadel and were advancing on North Vietnamese troops in the rest of the 19th century fortress.

"Most of the enemy are concentrated in the northwest section of the Citadel," said Lt. Col. Do Dang Bo, the Army spokesman in Hue.

The South Vietnamese command in Saigon backed off from its claim Tuesday that the paratroopers had completely reoccupied the 50-acre walled compound.

South Vietnamese bombers were attacking the North Vietnamese positions inside the Citadel with high explosive bombs and napalm, but Bo said there were no signs that the North Vietnamese were retreating. He described the action as sporadic, small contact in "section by section" of the Citadel.

Fighting erupted, meanwhile, behind the Quang Tri front, on the western flanks of Hue and farther south in the Que Son Valley, 25 miles below Da Nang.

Three South Vietnamese positions defending the western approaches to Hue were hit with 3,000 rounds of shellfire and ground assaults. South Vietnamese spokesmen claimed 229 North Vietnamese troops killed on the northern front Tuesday and today and said South Vietnamese losses were 21 killed and 140 wounded.

Seventy-five U.S. B52 bombers supported the South Vietnamese forces in the northern quarter of the country, dropping nearly 2,000 tons of explosives.

In the air war against North Vietnam, Navy jets wrecked half a dozen bridges on both sides of the port city of Vinh, 165 miles south of Hanoi, the 7th Fleet said.

Navy jets also heavily cratered the Vinh and Quang Lang MIG air bases, the 7th Fleet reported. Quang Lang is 35 miles northwest of Vinh.

The U.S. Command said more than 290 American fighter-bombers attacked targets in North Vietnam on Tuesday.

The command also announced that an Air Force A37 attack plane was downed Sunday in South Vietnam, four miles southeast of An Loc, and the pilot killed.

British bulldoze into a Catholic stronghold

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — British troops bulldozed into another Roman Catholic stronghold in Belfast early today to smash IRA barricades. They claimed their seizures of the Catholic guerrillas' arms have cut their operations in half.

Soldiers with armored bulldozers and mechanical diggers tore up 10 earth-and-steel barricades in the Andersonstown sector. The only resistance was a barrage of gasoline bombs, bottles and stones from youths — but none of the sniper fire that has opposed previous sweeps into territory controlled by the Irish Republican Army.

None of the army force was reported hit, and the troops dispersed the mob with rubber bullets.

In another sweep into the New Barnsley area, troops arrested one man and captured 98 rounds of ammunition, including some armor-piercing shells. Again there was no IRA fire.

An army spokesman reported 36 shooting incidents in Belfast and 13 in Londonderry in the previous 24 hours, a 50 per cent drop from the nightly average of more than 100 last week.

"It looks like this is a result of our operations," he said. The army claimed four guerillas were hit in gunfights in the two cities and said two soldiers were wounded.

The army has seized hundreds of rounds of ammunition, about 50 rifles, submachine guns and pistols, and more than half a ton of explosives in its nightly raids into IRA strongholds since last Friday. Some 50 suspects have been rounded up.

The offensive was launched by Britain's administrator for Northern Ireland, William Whitelaw, following the IRA bombing blitz last Friday in the heart of Belfast in which nine persons died and 130 were wounded.

Elsewhere, a bomb at a bus depot in Ballynahinch, 20 miles southeast of Belfast, destroyed three buses and damaged seven, and two blasts on the outskirts of Londonderry ripped two supermarkets apart. There were no casualties.

Meanwhile, the Protestant equivalent of the IRA, the Ulster Defense Association, called a nine-hour industrial strike in the province today to mourn the bomb victims last Friday. But bosses of Protestant-dominated trade unions urged their members to keep working and contribute a day's wages to a fund for the bomb victims' families.

MRS. ALTON LEWIS DUNN

Linda Gail Goodwin weds Alton Lewis Dunn

Linda Gail Goodwin and Alton Lewis Dunn exchanged wedding vows in a double ring ceremony, July 1, in the Hope Church of the Nazarene.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Autry B. Goodwin and Mr. and Mrs. Vinson Dunn of Savannah, Georgia.

The wedding music was presented by Mrs. William B. Smith, sister of the bride and Mrs. Lucille Bowers, sang "More", "Whither Thou Goest", and "The Wedding Prayer". Rev. E.J. Bowers, of Little Rock, assisted by Rev. John Hoffman, officiated the ceremony before an arch of greenery and baskets of carnations and gladioli.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of white silk organza over satin featuring an empire waistline and full bishop sleeves cuffed with bands of Venice lace. The high sheer bodice was trimmed with a center panel of lace and a Mandarin-style collar.

A mantilla of nylon tulle, edged with Venice lace fell from a pill box head piece. She carried a long cascade of fresh summer flowers of yellow, lilac, pink, and white carnations centered by a white orchid.

Miss Elaine Fetner, of Fairfax, Alabama, was maid of honor. She wore a long gown of lilac chiffon over taffeta, fashioned with an empire waistline and full sleeves ending in wide, fitted cuffs. The dress featured a stand-up collar with lilac and white embroidered trim accenting the center front, waist, and cuffs. She carried a bouquet of yellow, pink, white, and lilac carnations.

Vinson Dunn, father of the groom, acted as best man and the ushers were William B. Smith, of Gallup, New Mexico, and Sammy Bowers, of Little Rock.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Goodwin selected a dress of spring-green lace with beige accessories. She wore a corsage of white fleur d' amour. The mother of the groom, Mrs. Dunn, chose a yellow double knit dress with white accessories. She wore a corsage of fleur d' amour.

After the ceremony a patio-reception was held at the home of the parents of the bride. Miss Linda Stark attended the guest book and introduced them to the receiving line.

The serving table was covered with a draped lilac cloth and centered with an arrangement of carnations of white, lilac, pink, and yellow. The three-tiered wedding cake was iced in white with pink and lilac flowers and topped with a bride and groom.

Assisting the reception were Miss Sue Duckett, Arlene Dunn, Nelda Browning and Mrs. Wilton Garrett.

For travel, the bride chose a yellow double knit dress with beige accessories. She pinned the orchid from the bouquet at her shoulder.

After a trip to Dodge City, Kansas, the couple will reside in Colorado Springs. This fall, Mr. Dunn will be attending the Nazarene Bible College there.

Television and Radio

Editor's Note: During Cynthia Lowry's vacation, the column is being written by invited guests, each of whom was asked to respond to specific questions about their work in television. Here is the report of man who dreamed up and still acts as host on ABC's daytime frenetic "Let's Make a Deal." It's a combination of barter and gambling and is one show in which the studio audience is as much a part of the show as the give-aways.

By MONTY HALL

Q. Was the studio audience in strange costumes part of the show's original concept or did it appear spontaneously?

A. When the show started 8½ years ago, the contestants were women in normal street wear and men in business suits. There were no signs, no strange outfits. They brought items from home to trade—toy animals, decks of cards, things like that.

We always had more people in the traders' line than we could get on the show, so soon people began bringing unusual things and wearing costumes to attract attention when the contestants were being selected.

Soon no one came in street clothes. Ingenuity is rampant and I am still being surprised.

On taping days, ABC Television Center in Hollywood is an unbelievable sight: long queues of people in outlandish costumes with eye-catching signs. They even spill into the streets around the studio when the parking lot is filled. People living or working in the area are used to seeing the Jolly Green Giant, sunflowers, life-size playing cards, ghouls and all kinds of animals getting out of cars.

It poses a problem for the studio security people who try to maintain some sort of order in the parking area. And the parking lot serves as a dressing room as well. Some costumes are so intricate they can't be worn in a car and must be donned at the studio.

It is not uncommon, albeit a little disquieting, for an employee to end his day and go to his car, finding it blocked by a lady struggling into a rose-covered horseshoe that says "good luck."

The dressing-up is part of the fun of the game. Just as it is part of the game for me to be hugged, kissed and battered around by exuberant contestants.

The show has brought a lot of enjoyment to a lot of people—and it has been good to me.

The face of a tiki god with red lights around it, life-size cutouts of Hawaiian girls, and green bamboo with Hawaiian lanterns also decorated the clubhouse.

Hawaiian music filled the air, and a social hour was held on the patio with garlands of fresh flowers surrounding the punch bowl. Indoors a gold cloth covered the table that was centered with an arrangement of fresh fruit. Ham, meat balls, shrimp dip and a scooped out watermelon filled with fresh fruit were served.

McGraw: 'Relief pitching is an art'

ATLANTA (AP) — Tug McGraw is awfully glad that he doesn't pitch in the American League. He'd probably never make the All-Star team if he did.

"They don't recognize relief pitchers over there like they do in the National League," the New York Mets' bullpen star said Tuesday night after helping the Nationals win the 43rd midsummer classic with a tense 4-3 victory in 10 innings.

As if his powerhouse pitching didn't speak eloquently enough for his argument, the left-hander had much more to say after winning his first All-Star game.

"Relief pitching is an art," he said, "and only the National League recognizes that fact. Specialization is the National League way, the modern way."

I'm glad that my league has underlined the importance of a relief pitcher. He's really the 10th man on the team."

All of McGraw's remarks were, of course, directed at the American League—but mostly toward Manager Earl Weaver of the Baltimore Orioles. In three straight All-Star games, the American League field boss has never picked a relief pitcher for his staff.

"Earl certainly doesn't recognize us," said McGraw.

McGraw was certainly recognized as one of the best pitchers on Atlanta Stadium's playing field Tuesday night, although there were several other standouts in one of the best-played All-Star games in recent years.

McGraw held off the American League with shutout pitching in the last two innings, striking out four batters, before Cincinnati's Joe Morgan came through with the game-winning single in the 10th.

"It was some kind of breaking ball, but I don't know if it was a slider or curve since I've never seen him before," Morgan said of the pitch he hit for a run-scoring single off Baltimore southpaw Dave McNally, the losing pitcher.

Actually, the whole affair never would have gotten to the extra-inning stage except for some game-turning dramatics by Atlanta's Hank Aaron, the hometown golden boy, and Cookie Rojas of the Kansas City Royals.

Aaron coaxed the standing room-only crowd of 53,107 to an ear-splitting roar when he belted a two-run homer over the 375-foot mark in left-center to give the Nationals a 2-1 lead in the sixth inning.

Then Rojas, one of the unlikeliest home run hitters on the field, delivered a pinch-hit clout with a man aboard in the eighth inning to give the Americans a 3-2 lead that put a wet blanket on Aaron's accomplishment. However, the Nationals tied the game in the ninth on Lee May's run-scoring bouncer.

Aaron called his home run "the most dramatic" he's hit. "It made me feel good because most of the folks came out to see me hit one," said Aaron, who has unloaded 659 career homers in his chase toward Babe Ruth's record 714.

His latest blast was collected off Cleveland's Gaylord Perry, an old "friend." He hit his 600th homer off Perry when he was pitching in the National League.

Morgan, ever the romantic, wished that Aaron would have won the Most Valuable Player trophy instead of himself.

Weaver, who managed last year's 6-4 American League victory at Detroit, refused to change his All-Star stance on relief pitchers even after Tuesday night's result gave the Nationals a 24-18-1 edge.

"I think all of my pitchers did well tonight," said Weaver. "It was just one of those things."

Cowboys are favored in Friday's All-Star game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bob Devaney has a string of 23 coaching victories and 32 unbeaten games, but if he hopes to continue that streak, he had better have a few aces up his sleeve.

Devaney, coach of the 1972 College All Stars, has been drilling his squad in preparation for Friday night's 39th All-Star Game against the Super Bowl champion Dallas Cowboys in Chicago.

The veteran Nebraska coach, whose teams have won two straight national football championships, told a Junior Chamber of Commerce luncheon in Chicago Tuesday he was well aware of what the National Football League champions could do.

"After a study of Cowboy game films, we decided to concentrate our game preparations on punting and kickoff returns," Devaney joked after introducing his squad.

In a more serious vein, he noted:

"With a group of guys like this, we feel that if we got any coaching to them at all, we would have a good chance. I know they're going to give it a great effort Friday night."

The All Stars will be led by quarterbacks Jerry Tagge and Van Bronson, both of Nebraska, and Pat Sullivan of Auburn, the Heisman Trophy winner.

The Cowboys are 16-10 1/2-point favorites in the game, which the pros have won 27 times while losing nine and tying twice.

Elsewhere, the San Francisco 49ers reported that rookie wide receiver Terry Beasley has broken a bone in his right big toe. The former Auburn All-American had just returned from being out "eight" days with a pulled hamstring muscle.

Chuck Hixson, who set many national passing records at Southern Methodist, announced his retirement after the Kansas City Chiefs said he had been traded to Buffalo. He never played in a NFL game. He was the Chiefs' 13th draft choice in 1971.

Franco Harris, the Pittsburgh Steelers' No. 1 draft choice, signed a multi-year contract with the team. The terms for the former Penn State player were not announced.

The Baltimore Colts signed veteran wide receivers Eddie Hinton, Ray Perkins, and Jim O'Brien who's also a place-kicker, and defensive back Tom Curtis.

Wendell Tucker, a four-year wide receiver, was cut by the St. Louis Cardinals. Second-year kicker Skip Butler was released by the New York Giants, who also said rookie linebacker Jim Evans will undergo knee surgery.

Mike Tilleman, a Houston defensive tackle, was reported in good condition after exploratory abdominal surgery. Doctors said they found an abscess on the abdominal wall but no

Quarry quits ring

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Jerry Quarry, whose dream of a heavyweight boxing title eluded him through seven years as a professional, says he has quit the ring to pursue a career in public relations.

The 27-year-old Texan said Tuesday the decision to retire came last June 27 after he watched his brother Mike get knocked out by George Foster in a light heavyweight bout in Las Vegas.

Quarry himself was TKO'd in the same ring later that night by Muhammad Ali.

"I lost my desire when Mike lost his fight," Quarry said. "Watching my brother loose like he did was seeing him go through the same frustrations I'd gone through."

Quarry, interviewed by telephone, was in Pittsburgh to promote a rock concert for Reb Foster Associates, the same firm which handled publicity for his fights.

"I decided that if the right position came along I would take it," Quarry noted. "The only regret I have is that I never attained the heavyweight championship. But everything else came out just beautiful."

Quarry won 43 of his 53 pro fights, but his bids for championships were throttled by Ali and reigning champion Joe Frazier.

Bart Starr is new coach

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP)—Bart Starr, the quarterback who led the Green Bay Packers to championships during their glory years of the 1960s, was hired today as a coach with the National Football League club.

Starr, 38, announced his retirement as a player last Friday. The Packers said today he would begin work Aug. 1 as a coach.

Nat'l League triumphs 4-3

By KEN RAPPOPORT

ATLANTA (AP) — Joe Morgan didn't like the way the script for the 43rd major league All-Star Game was going so the little Cincinnati Reds' infielder took things into his own hands.

The extravaganza turned into a most happy event for Morgan, whose 10th inning run-scoring single gave the National League a 4-3 triumph Tuesday night before a record 53,107 crowd at Atlanta Stadium.

But only two innings earlier, it appeared that Cookie Rojas would be the hero, after he put the American League ahead 3-2 on a two-run homer off Montreal's Bill Stoneman.

Earlier Hank Aaron, pushing toward Babe Ruth's all-time home run mark of 714 with 659, stroked a two-run blow in the sixth inning, putting the Nationals up 2-1, and sending the home town crowd into a frenzy, giving the Atlanta slugger nearly a two-minute standing ovation.

"When Aaron hit the homer it was like watching a Hollywood movie," Morgan said afterward in the winners dressing room. "I thought he should be the hero. Then when Rojas hit it, I said, 'Gee, it's not supposed to be that way.'"

Morgan then won it for the NL in the 10th after Nate Colbert walked and was sacrificed to second by San Francisco's Chris Spier. Morgan crisply spanked a line drive single to right center and Colbert easily stroled home with the winner.

Morgan was voted the games' Most Valuable Player, with Aaron second and winning reliever, Tug McGraw the third choice. Rojas was fourth.

"This was one of the most dramatic home runs I ever hit," Aaron said. "I felt comfortable hitting against Perry. (Gaylord, formerly of San Francisco and this year a 16-game winner with Cleveland) 'The pitch I hit off him was a spitter. It wasn't one of his best spitters, but it was a spitter.'"

Danny Murtaugh, who retired after guiding the Pittsburgh Pirates to the World Championship last year, led the NL to its ninth victory in 10 games and put them ahead in the series which started in 1933, to 24-18-1.

"It's games like these that sent me into retirement," the jovial Murtaugh said of his one-day triumphant return.

Rojas was disappointed that the American League didn't win but was thrilled about his home run.

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Bobby Fischer's one-game lead in the world chess championship match appeared safe today as he and Boris Spassky prepared to resume play in the adjourned seventh game. Experts said the best the Soviet champion could hope for was a draw, which would make the score 4-3 in favor of the American.

The game continues at 1 p.m. EDT today with the opening of a sealed envelope containing Spassky's 41st move.

Spassky opened aggressively Tuesday. For a time it looked as if he had a winning game and would even the match at 3 1/2-all. But the Russian faded in the middle stages.

Fischer, with a one-pawn advantage when play stopped for the night, "appeared in little danger of losing" but there were many possibilities for a draw, international grandmaster Isaac Kashdan said in an analysis for The Associated Press.

If both played their best today, that extra pawn "should be the determining factor in Fischer's favor," Kashdan wrote.

Spassky was also under the gun in playing time because of his slow play, with only 20 minutes left for today's first 16 moves.

When play adjourned Tuesday night, Fischer had four pawns, two rooks and a knight. Spassky had three pawns, two rooks and a knight.

Playing the white chessmen, Spassky opened by moving his king's pawn two squares. The fans buzzed with anticipation, because it is Fischer's favorite opening and it was the first time in the championships the Russian had deviated from his own preferred queen's pawn opening.

Fischer replied with an equally aggressive move, pawn to queen's bishop 4, moving into a Sicilian defense and at the fifth move taking the Najdorf variation.

The 29-year-old challenger took with his queen a knight's

"poisoned" pawn offered by Spassky. This is "something every beginner is told never to do," Kashdan commented.

"But Fischer knows all the exceptions as well as the rules ... He is the only grandmaster who still plays that variation and gets away with it."

After 10 moves the Russian side was all smiles.

"It's good for Spassky, he has come out kicking," said Prof. Nikolai Krogus, one of the Russian seconds.

The smiles faded when Fischer introduced a stunning innovation at the 11th move.

He moved a pawn to king's rook 3.

"That's beautiful," said Argentine grandmaster Miguel Najdorf, for whom the Najdorf variation is named.

Spassky frowned over the board for 35 minutes, then offered a second pawn sacrifice.

The Russian recovered one of the lost pawns but never succeeded in equalizing or successfully attacking.

Lesson 1:

Don't attempt to outsmart Alabama county sheriff

ALABASTER, Ala. (AP) — Special Forces units undergoing summer training in guerrilla warfare tactics learned at least one important lesson: Don't try to outsmart an Alabama county sheriff.

The mayor and police chief of this city of 4,000, some 20 miles south of Birmingham, were kidnapped at gunpoint, hauled away in a camper and held in mosquito-infested woods for six hours a week ago, they revealed Tuesday. It was all part of a drill to show National Guard units from Alabama, Florida and Louisiana how the Viet Cong terrorized small villages.

Mayor Willie Mathis and Police Chief C. E. Carter were driving around town together when a pickup truck with a portable camper on the back pulled alongside. Seven members of the Guard's 20th Special Forces Unit — Green Berets — jumped out, leveled M16 rifles and pistols and herded them into the vehicle.

"They had us covered faster than the drop of a hat," the mayor said. "We didn't have a chance."

The chief was handcuffed and both were kept under the watchful eyes of the silent men in Guard uniforms.

"We knew the troops were in the area and we had heard they would try to take a political prisoner. But we were told a recruit would be brought in. The recruit would think he was learning my job but later would be kidnapped," the mayor explained.

Actually, it was the recruit's job to keep an eye on the mayor and make note of his activities for the kidnapping. Before Guard officials told Mrs. Mathis what was going on, she called Shelby County Sheriff C. P. "Red" Walker, whose immediate reaction was, "Something sneaky's going on here."

The sheriff, theorizing the city judge — or even himself — might be the next victim, took deputies and local police and surrounded the judge's home. Sure enough, after dark, eight figures sneaked silently onto the property of City Judge H. L. Hollis, knocked on his door and surrounded him.

"Not so fast there," the sheriff's voice boomed out.

The eight were arrested, booked on an open charge and found themselves prisoners of their own little war game.

The sheriff soon received a telephone call in which an unidentified voice said he wanted his soldiers back. Walker replied he would release them when the mayor and police chief were freed.

The sheriff got his way. The eight soldiers, however, were held in jail until the next day.

"I thought I'd keep them just in case anybody else disappeared during the night," Walker said.

Testimony is taken by House committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Seaucus, N.J., man testified Tuesday he borrowed $15,000 from his nephew, who was blacklisted by the Thoroughbred Racing Protection Bureau, to buy horses from the nephew.

But Anthony Manzi denied that he was fronting for his nephew, Robert Presti of Fort Lee, N.J. Manzi testified before the House Select committee on Crime.

"My nephew told me it was a sound business investment," Manzi said. "My nephew wanted to see me make some money."

"Isn't it clear that he was just using your name for this transaction?" queried Joseph A. Phillips, chief counsel for the committee.

No, Manzi replied, but said that under terms of the transaction Presti would absorb any losses incurred by the horses while Manzi would collect any profits.

The committee is investigating, among other things, the practice of race horses being owned by persons who are not listed as their owners.

The committee counsel is attempting to show that Presti actually owned a number of race horses though he is not listed as their owner.

Presti described himself as a horse broker. He said he has been arrested "four or five times" on various charges but has never been convicted.

"The evidence suggests Mr. Manzi is a channel through which you do business," said Rep. Jerome Waldie, D-Calif. Presti denied this.

Predicts a labor swing to president

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson predicts labor will swing to President Nixon this November, giving him the largest worker vote a Republican candidate has received in 40 years.

Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern "is interested in redistributing wealth and that means taking from those who work and giving it to those who don't," Hodgson said at news conference Tuesday.

"Organized labor was unceremoniously thrown out of its former political home" at the Democratic national convention, he went on. "The political story of the hour is that the American labor movement has found a new home in the Republican party."

Hodgson, answering questions before speaking at the National Conference on Urban Technology, said that normally 90 per cent of the unions back the Democratic candidate, but this year only 32 of 117 international unions are ready to endorse McGovern.

Ticket scalpers are arrested

ATLANTA (AP) — Thirty-two persons were arrested on charges of ticket scalping at the All-Star Game in Atlanta Tuesday night.

Sgt. A. L. Elsberry, head of the police gambling section, said he and nine other plainclothes officers infiltrated the crowds several hours before the game.

"The scalpers were lined up from 120 all the way to the stadium. They were in all the parking lots. We had a field day for a while then the bottom fell out of the market," Elsberry said.

Officers said $12 tickets were offered for as much as $50.

MR. AND MRS. MURPHY

Program at Kiwanis is presented by Murphys

At Tuesday's meeting of the Kiwanis Club Mr. and Mrs. Dean Murphy who represented the Hope club at the Kiwanis International Convention in Atlantic in late June made their report to the local club.

Mrs. Murphy explained that though the convention is not officially for the wives of Kiwanians, they are welcome to attend any of the sessions and there are always planned activities for the ladies attending. Parties, style shows, brunches, and meetings with some of America's outstanding women are all a part of the ladies programs.

Murphy in his report stated that 17,000 were in attendance at this year's convention whose sessions were held in the Convention Center of Atlantic City where the Miss America Pageant is held each year.

In the annual election Lorin Badskey of Indiana was chosen to lead the nearly 300,000 members of Kiwanis International.

Panel discussion and forums were held throughout convention week, dealing with Kiwanis programs and with problems of the day and how Kiwanis might assist in solving these problems.

One evening various districts held their district dinners at which programs are provided. The Murphys had a surprise at the MoArk District dinner when Tommy Purvis, a local young man living at the Children's Colony in Conway, was introduced and sang several selections.

Other entertainment at the convention included Anita Bryant, Dick Shawn, and Sammy Kaye as well as other recognized talents.

Murphy stated that so far as he was concerned the talk of Art Linkletter was the high point of the convention. Linkletter made this observation, "Children don't need mothers and dads who are pals. They need parents".

Kiwanian Gaylon Decious had as his guest his young son, Gaylon Mark.

Investigation into experiment launched

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has launched a full investigation of a federal experiment in which some Alabama black men died because they were denied proper medical treatment for syphilis and its side-effects.

The investigation was announced Tuesday night by Dr. Merlin K. DuVal, assistant secretary of HEW, who said he was shocked and horrified to learn of the experiment. The announcement followed disclosure by The Associated Press of the 40-year study.

"Although the study was begun in 1932, and although the opportunity to bring treatment to these men has long passed, I am today launching a full investigation into the circumstances surrounding it," DuVal said.

"I especially want to determine why the study was permitted to continue past the time penicillin became the effective drug of choice against the disease," he said. "I can say with certainty that such a study could not be launched today."

HEW oversees the Public Health Service, which, in 1932, initiated the Tuskegee Study, an experiment which withheld proper medical treatment from a group of Tuskegee, Ala., syphilitics in order to determine through autopsy at the time of their deaths what damage the untreated disease can do to the human body.

Current PHS officials say they have questions about the morality of the study, particularly the post-World War II decision not to treat the syphilitics with penicillin, then a proven readily available cure for the disease.

Originally, PHS officials at the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta told The Associated Press that the study involved 600 black men divided into three groups: 200 not suffering syphilis, 200 with the disease and treated with the best methods known at the time and 200 not treated for syphilis at all.

However, after the study was disclosed and CDC officials rechecked, they said they found that none of the 400 men who had syphilis ever was treated for it, doubling the size of the group exposed to disability and death.

Reventlow: 'Born with money'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Some people are born with brown eyes. I was born with money."

That was Lance Reventlow's offhanded comment about the $50 million to $100 million he would some day inherit from his mother, the much-married Woolworth dimestore heiress, Barbara Hutton.

His mother outlived him, though. Reventlow and three other persons died in the crash of a light plane near Aspen, Colo., during a thunderstorm Monday night.

In his 37 years Reventlow used his mother's money to lead an adventurous, sporting life.

Reventlow's biggest extravagance was racing cars. He designed his own model, and its beetle-like shape dictated its name — the Scarab. In his early 20s he raced the car on the grand prix circuit, winning the Nassau race in 1958.

His racing contributed to the dissolution of his marriage to his first wife, actress Jill St. John. "Lance has taken out his racing license again," she told a reporter when they separated in 1962 after two years of marriage. "A big fight resulted."

Reventlow was the son of Miss Hutton and her second husband, the Danish Count Haugwitz-Reventlow. The marriage ended in divorce and the boy was the subject of a bitter custody fight. Miss Hutton won full custody of Lance in 1945.

A frail boy afflicted with asthma, Lance spent his childhood in boarding schools in the United States and Europe.

In 1960, Reventlow married Miss St. John, a onetime child actress who developed into a sex symbol. At first she said she wouldn't try to dissuade him from racing. Later she did, and they were divorced in 1963.

In 1964, Reventlow married Cheryl Holdridge, 19, an actrix who had once been a member of the Mouseketeers of the Mickey Mouse Club television show. She said that she didn't insist on it, but Lance gave up car racing. In his last years he devoted himself to polo and skiing. He had maintained a home in Aspen for six years.

Federal investigators are attempting to learn the cause of the plane crash.

Authorities said from the condition of the wreckage, found at the 10,500-foot elevation, it was believed the plane had plunged nearly straight down into the trees in a heavily wooded box canyon.

Decision delayed by federal judge

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — A federal judge has delayed a decision on whether to impose new contempt citations in the case of four Vietnam Veterans Against the War who refused to testify to a grand jury about an alleged conspiracy to disrupt the Republican National Convention.

The VVAW, meanwhile, pledged to rotate six members indicted on federal conspiracy charges in and out of jail until enough money is raised to post bail for all six.

U. S. District Court Judge David L. Middlebrooks said at the end of the hearing Tuesday it could be 10 days before he rules on the contempt citations under which he previously put VVAW members in jail.

The four were freed July 18 when the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals ordered Middlebrooks to hold a rehearing. Middlebrooks had put Wayne Beverly of Austin, Tex.; John Chambers of St. Petersburg, Fla., and Jack Jennings and Bruce Horton, both of Gainesville, Fla., in jail July 13 for refusing to testify before a federal grand jury investigating VVAW.

Middlebrooks said he would need more time to study points raised by defense lawyers. The veterans could be held for the life of the grand jury, up to another year, without bond.

Defense lawyer Cam Cunningham of Austin, Tex., accused the U.S. Justice Department of "improper use of the grand jury to prepare witnesses for trial."

The usual secrecy of grand jury proceedings was opened to some extent Tuesday when portions of testimony by the four veterans were read in the courtroom.

Grand jury testimony revealed all four refused to answer questions by Justice Department lawyer Guy Goodwin on whether they had participated in plans to bomb police cars, police stations and stores during the Aug. 21-23 GOP convention at Miami Beach.

Meir asks Sadat to head for 'new path' for peace

JERUSALEM (AP) — Premier Golda Meir cautiously welcomed Egypt's expulsion of Soviet military advisers and called today on President Anwar Sadat to "strike out on a new path" toward peace.

"Let us meet as equals and make a joint supreme effort to arrive at an agreed solution to all the outstanding problems," Mrs. Meir said in Israel's first official comment on Sadat's expulsion of the Russians last week. "The well-being and future of our nations depend on such a dialogue."

The premier told the Knesset, Israel's parliament, that it was too soon to make a reliable evaluation of Sadat's action. But she said "this highly significant event in the life of Egypt may even contribute to positive developments in the area."

The premier praised the Soviet government for refusing to meet Egyptian demands "which, if met, would have caused and made possible the renewal of the war." She said the Soviet refusal to give Egypt offensive weapons helped save the Egyptians from another defeat.

Mrs. Meir appealed to Sadat "to strike out on a new path, never to return to the course which has led to death, destruction and frustration without bringing peace"

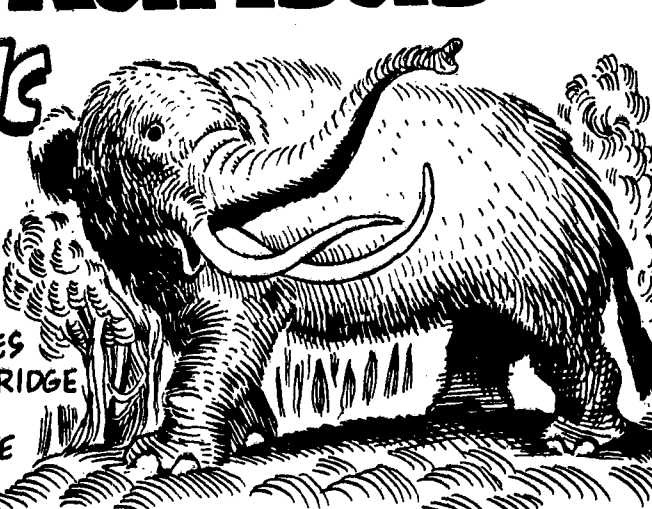

Mrs. Meir had warm praise for President Nixon and the American support for Israel. She said after the August 1970 cease-fire, Soviet arms shipments that continued to Egypt had upset the balance of power, but early this year Washington had agreed to sell more Phantom jet planes to Israel.

"The government of the United States and its President deserve our full appreciation and gratitude for this," she declared.

Defense lawyers hope to halt 'Papers' trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Defense lawyers are hoping to stop the Pentagon Papers trial for an appeal of a judge's ruling on government wiretapping.

U.S. District Court Judge Matt Byrne held Tuesday that government wiretaps that inadvertently picked up the conversation of a defense team member did not illegally infringe on the rights of the defendants, Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo.

Byrne said he had read a transcript of the intercepted conversation but he wouldn't show it to the defense or identify the person involved.

The defense asked a stay in the trial until next Monday to allow a hearing on the wiretapping decision. When Byrne refused, ordering the trial to continue today, the defense said it would appeal immediately to the U.S. 9th Circuit Court of Appeals.

"One of the persons on the defense team was the recipient of a communication from an installation under surveillance," said Byrne.

"I find that the statement...regards an event that is utterly without significance or relevance to this case in any way."

"It makes a difference to us whether the conversation was that of an attorney or a consultant," said lawyer Leonard Boudin. His co-counsel, Leonard Wienglass, exclaimed, "I've never been in a case where the identity has been kept from the defense. We need the identity to appeal."

Byrne repeatedly refused to say any more about the wiretap.

Meanwhile, Byrne completed selection of alternate jurors and the five women and one man chosen were sworn for jury duty. They include the only Negro on the entire jury panel and the wife of the president of the Space Division of North American Rockwell Corp. The defense failed in an effort to remove the latter juror because of her husband's high security clearance.

Ellsberg, 41, and Russo, 35, both former Rand Corp. researchers on government projects, are charged with espionage, conspiracy and theft in connection with the leak to news media of top secret studies of U.S. involvement in the Vietnam war.

Baha'i Faith to visit Hope area

A visit to the Hope area is now being planned as a part of the 30th anniversary celebration of the establishment of the first Baha'i Assembly in the state of Arkansas in 1943. The Baha'i Faith includes 59,000 centers in 317 countries.

It was introduced into Arkansas by author Howard Colby Ives; There are now Baha'is in 45 cities in Arkansas.

During the 30th anniversary year, plans are being made to visit every city in Arkansas where no Baha'is are yet available to answer questions. The visiting speakers will have available several movies about the Baha'i Faith, several produced by Kiva Films, the award-winning company that produces the films for the educational television program, Sesame Street.

The newest of these movies, currently in production, was filmed in Panama, at the dedication of the Baha'i House of Worship for Latin America. Baha'is from across Arkansas contributed for more than two years to the construction of this building, which cost more than a million dollars and has attracted world-wide attention for its unusual design.

Across the United States, membership more than doubled during the past year; At the Baha'i Center in Little Rock, a full-time hostess, Mrs. Buelah Magruder, helps to coordinate the large number of meetings taking place across the state and assists in answering letters of people who write in for information.

Fewer than half of French POWs were returned

PARIS (AP) — After France's war in Indochina ended in 1954, fewer than half the troops under French command reported captured or missing were returned.

The French government announced in Paris that it had a list of 27,582 men in its forces who were known to be prisoners or were missing in action since the war began in 1946. The French high command in Saigon claimed 40,172 men had disappeared, and the Viet Minh—as the Communist forces were called then—said it held only 9,870.

When the final postwar operations had been completed, 11,880 men had been returned to the French army. The French said they returned about 65,000 men to the Viet Minh.

Many of the freed French POWs were in a pitiful state, ill and exhausted. About half of them couldn't walk.

The agreement reached at Geneva July 21, 1954, called for release of all military and civilian prisoners within 20 days after the cease fire went into effect.

It was hoped that 1,000 men a day could be exchanged, but for the first few days the Viet Minh turned over only about half that number.

Heavy rains sometimes forced cancellation of the exchanges and by the date fixed for the completion of the prisoner releases, only 4,447 of the French forces had been freed. The time limit was extended eight days.

George Wallace is visited by John Connally

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace, reported by friends to be planning to watch the presidential race from the sidelines, has been visited by former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally.

Connally called on Wallace Tuesday and a source close to the Alabama governor said it would be natural to assume the two discussed Connally's "Democrats for Nixon" move.

Carrier vote set for today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate votes today on whether to let the Navy build a fourth atomic-powered aircraft carrier, a billion-dollar project critics consider extravagant.

Sen. William Saxbe, a dissenting member of the Senate Armed Services Committee which endorsed the project, has offered an amendment to cancel it.

The Ohio Republican contends that the ship, designated CVN-70, is too costly and would be vulnerable to enemy attack. He says the Navy already has enough carriers in the works.

The Navy insists the ship is essential to keep the carrier force up to date.

Critics in and out of the Navy argue that emphasis should be shifted from carriers to smaller, more flexible ships such as hydrofoils, and to submarines.

Five hours were set aside for debate and voting today. Funds for the carrier are part of the $20.5-billion Pentagon procurement budget before the Senate. Another key test will come later on increased funding for the Trident submarine.

Airport, buses hit by strike

LONDON (AP) — The growing strike wave against the Conservative government's new labor law hit the London bus system and Heathrow Airport today, taking most of the double-deck red buses off the city's streets and canceling many flights to the Continent.

The Official Solicitor, an independent watchdog for the legal system or sort of ombudsman, was to appear before the Industrial Relations Court today to ask for the release of the five longshoremen whose imprisonment last Friday touched off the strike wave. But there was no indication whether the court would free the men, whom it held in contempt because they defied its order to stop illegal picketing.

The five men are the first jailed under the antistrike law which Prime Minister Edward Heath's Conservatives pushed through Parliament last year, and the strike wave in support of them has turned into a drive to nullify the law.

More than 300,000 workers were estimated on strike, and the engineering workers' union ordered its 1.5 million members to down their tools next Monday for 24 hours. The general

Man can't be buried by friends

CHICAGO (AP) — Guy Shubert is dead and the East St. Louis blind association to which he dedicated the last 22 years of his life is not able to bury him.

Shubert, 73, blind since 1950 and choked by emphysema, worked without pay for the Benevolent Blind Service, Inc. He was a public relations man, a fund raiser and business agent for the firm, which raised $750,000 in the last quarter century.

"If it hadn't been for a man like him, we never could have done it," said the Rev. Lloyd Calvert, head of the association.

"The man had one lung and couldn't breathe, but he always

However, there was no confirmation of this.

Officer accused four

NORTH LITTLE ROCK (AP) — An eight-year veteran of the North Little Rock Police Department has accused four of his superior officers of assaulting him with "physical force and verbal harassment" at the North Little Rock Police and Courts Building.

Patrolman Monte E. Montgomery, 29, said that he suffered a cut on his arm during the altercation and was treated at a North Little Rock hospital.

Montgomery filed an offense report accusing Capt. W.D. Younts, Capt. Robert L. Stanton, Lt. Bobby West and Sgt. W.J. Miles of accusing him Tuesday afternoon.

Montgomery said he had been ordered to report to West's office because he allegedly had been out of his assigned patrol area. The officer said he questioned Miles about the order to report to West's office and "the sergeant blew up and started screaming and shouting me out the door and calling for Capt. Younts."

Montgomery said Younts and Miles physically forced him to the lieutenant's office.

"While I was in the office I was assaulted, threatened with suspension and otherwise verbally abused," Montgomery said.

Police Chief Reo Bowman and the four officers named in the report declined to comment. Bowman did say he would investigate the charges.

Montgomery testified before a federal grand jury that inscribed as "unannounced but not unexpected." A Wallace aide said Connally wanted the visit kept a secret from the news media so that it would not "look like a political thing."

"It was a social visit," Connally said later. "I meant to see him when he was in Maryland, but never did get the chance."

The two men also discussed the shooting incidents in which they were involved, and Connally with alleged illegal gambling in North Little Rock.

dedicated North Little Rock police Capt. Billy E. Carroll Dec. 10 on a perjury charge in connally encouraged Wallace to keep up the therapy to overcome as much as possible of his paralysis.

Connally was governor of Texas in 1963 when he was wounded while riding in the Dallas motorcade in which President John F. Kennedy was assassinated. Wallace was wounded May 15 while campaigning in Laurel, Md.

Wallace has not ruled out unequivocally the chance of another third-party campaign. But some members of his staff are predicting he will make a firm "I-won't-run" statement before or during the American Party convention which opens Aug. 3 at Louisville, Ky.

The governor, an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination won by Sen.

George McGovern, has been invited to make the keynote speech at the Louisville convention. He talked Tuesday with top officials of the national American Party and said he plans to ask his doctors today if he will be physically able to attend.

Wallace is still paralyzed in both legs from the would-be assassin's bullet which penetrated the abdominal wall and struck his spinal cord, and he is undergoing physical therapy at the Spain Rehabilitation Center in Birmingham.

Meanwhile, in the two weeks since McGovern's nomination, Wallace's national campaign staff here has been cut back from 104 employees to 17 and is being moved to smaller quarters.

By Oswald & James Jacoby Undoubtedly there are unlucky bridge players around just as there must be lucky ones, but it is remarkable to see just how much bad luck these unlucky players bring on themselves.

East takes two club tricks and decides that if he is going to get any diamond tricks they will do him just as much good later on as right away so he returns a trump.

South cashes his ace and king of trumps, enters dummy by overtaking his six of trumps with dummy's seven. Then he leads a diamond to his 10.

West promptly takes his ace and plays a diamond right back. This takes care of any problems in diamonds. Later on South takes a successful finesse against East's queen of spades and makes his contract.

If West is one of those unlucky players he will point out that South needed two finesesses and a trump break to make his contract.

Someone may point out that if West had just let the 10 of diamonds hold the first diamond trick South would not have been able to make his contract because he wouldn't have the two dummy entries necessary to take a second diamond finesse and a first spade finesse.

Probably no one will. They may not have seen it or may not want to annoy poor West further.
